The motive behind the construction of the terraces is to avoid sloping terrain where the water for agricultural production or forestry plantations runs off and, instead, promote the flat terrain where the water filters slowly. The steps should have an average width of 6 m. for agricultural uses and 5 m. for forest production. The width of the terraces also depends on the slope of the ground.